SEMI-ANNUAL PAY

Inheritance Tax Leads List of Revenue Sources

(By Capitol News Bureau)
Special to Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO, June 14—San Mateo County's semi-annual settlement with the state government for the period just ended totaled $176,348.45, State Controller Ray L. Riley announced today.

Of this amount, $173,073.96 represented inheritance tax collections.

For the state as a whole, the semi-annual settlement of the county treasurers, covering five months ending May 1, reached a grand total of $5,492,246.08, the controller's statement showed.

Inheritance tax collections represented the great bulk of the county payments to the state, this revenue alone aggregating $5,-01,536.72 for the five-month period.

San Francisco, due to unusually heavy inheritance tax collections, led the list of counties in the amount paid into the state treasury with a total of $1,868,-73.16, of which $1,814,251.17 was inheritance tax.

| Estates of deceased persons | 46,458.50 |

Y. M. I. Juniors To Play Panthers

The Y. M. I. Juniors of Redwood City will meet the Holly Par Panthers Sunday morning at 10:30, on the Sequoia diamond. The Juniors have been practicing hard all week for Sunday's game and are in fine trim. Both the locals and the city team are rated high and have so far been undefeated. On the record of their past performance the Juniors are asking the support of the people of Redwood City at this game, which will be an exciting one.

Roy Haruff will take the mound for the locals, and "Chuck" DeLacy will stop Roy's fast ones as they come over the plate.

Baby Girl Dies From Pneumonia

Ellen Frances Spencer, nine months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Spencer of this city, passed away at the family home on Spruce street Wednesday morning following a brief illness from pneumonia. The little girl is survived by three sisters, Dorral Lee, Helen Louise and Edna Marie Spencer.

Funeral services for the little girl were held yesterday from the parlors of Layng and Tinney and were followed by interment in Alta Mesa cemetery.

Mrs. Lottie Heise, who has been visiting for several months with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Will T. Davis at Pleasanton, returned this week to her home on Hamilton street.

ATHLETIC CLUB FORMING HERE

The organization of a Redwood City Athletic Club is fast becoming a reality. Announcement of the idea and steps being taken to put the proposition over were first announced to the public at the annual dinner of Redwood City Post No. 105 of the American Legion, held at the Parish House last Monday evening, at which meeting the unanimous endorsement of te local Legion post was given.

Tuesday evening at the regular weekly dinner of the Redwood City Exchange Club, the formation of this club was endorsed and a resolution made to the effect that the local Exchange Club is 100% back of the movement.

On Wednesday noon, at the weekly luncheon of the local Kiwanis Club, the matter was presented and received the endorsement of this organization.

The formation of a strong well organized athletic club will be a big thing for Redwood City. It will allow the continuance of athletic careers for the youth of the city and vicinity graduating from the high school as well as take care of working, business and professional men. It will put Redwood City on the map, and with widespread publicity.

Teams will be organized in all te lines of sport, including baseball, football, soccer, tennis, swimming, volleyball, basketball, etc. A Twilight Baseball League will be formed next spring and it is hoped to have at least ten teams competing. An industrial basketball league will be formed for the fall and winter season. The entire programme will be announced at a big sign-up rally to be held in the near future. Tentative plans are being made to put on a big programme with many notables in the line of sport to appear and talk on the subject of athletics and athletic clubs with the resultant benefis to the welfare of hose engaging in healthgiving sports.

The temporary committee working on this project consists of A. J. Stebenne, Dr. H. C. Clattenburg, Dr. R. C. Frazier, Ray Dimick, Emmet Donnelly, Sam Winklebleck and Gordon Seely.

Graduates Entertained At Carrington Home

Miss Carol Carrington entertained a number of the members of the graduating class of the Sequoio Union High School and other friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Carrington following the graduation last Friday evening. Her guests were: Misses Carol Yearian, Olga Laursen, Bess Leggett, Jacqueline Bugge, Pauline Lovelace of Kansas City, Bonita Nobs of Grass Valley, Jane Ingram, Myrtle Tripp, Elizabeth Werthman and Rosalie Carrington and Messrs. ## ALDA SILVA MAY PLACE IN BIG GAME TRYOUTS

CERTAIN WINNER

Olympic Try-outs To Be Held July 4

Prominent citizens of Redwood City will be busy the next few days raising funds to send Alda Silva of this city to the national championships and Olympic try-outs to be held at Newark, New Jersey, July 4.

This local athlete has improved wonderfully in the competition the past year, and is certain to be one of the high point winners in the national championships.

With the exception of Lillian Copeland, the Redwood City girl is perhaps the best shot putter in America. She placed in the hurdles at the last national meet and this year has won every race from Belle Owens, who was second last year.

She has improved wonderfully in the javelin throw and discus throw. At a recent meet she defeated Margaret Jenkins in the javelin throw and Miss Jenkins holds the world's record. She has been working out in the discus throw and has already made 100 feet. She will without doubt be one of the five girls who will be selected to go to Amsterdam in this event.

Miss Silva by practice this year has reached the point where she ranks as one of America's best all-around athletes. Her form in the hurdles is considered second only to Helen Filkey, the Chicago wonder.

E. B. Hinman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is in charge of the campaign to raise $275 to send the Redwood City star to Newark.

The Berkeley Chamber of Commerce will send three girls; Suisun-Fairfield has raised the funds for three girls; Vallejo sent two girls and possibly six will go from Eureka.

It is expected that an active campaign will be urged in Redwood City with the service clubs assisting.

New Food Store To Be Opened Here Soon

One more first class food store will be added to Redwood City's rapidly growing business district next Friday with the opening here of the Public Food Store. This new market will open at 640 Broadway. It is one of 60 stores operated by the Public Food Stores on the peninsula and in San Francisco.

The Public Food Stores have been in business for the past six years and have earned an enviable reputation for carrying fine merchandise. The establishment here in addition to a full line of first-class groceries, will carry a fine assortment of fresh fruit and vegetables.

J. H. Linfield, president of the company, stated in regard to opening a branch in this city, "Redwood City is a rapidly developing trading center, and we feel that there is a splendid opportunity there for the Public Food Stores. There are several excellent food stores in operation there now, but we feel that with the growth which the town is experiencing that not only will there be room for these but for many others. It is to help meet the demand for first-class foods of all kinds that we are opening our store in Redwood City."

Deputy Sheriff Springs Surprise

Deputy Sheriff A. C. Callaghan of this city surprised his many friends here this week when he announced tat he had been marannounced that he had been marHavens, a well-known young lady of [illegible] The wedding was an entire surprise to the friends of the popudar official, and when the news reached the courthouse he was sowered with congratulations and good wishes.

Callaghan, or "Cal" as he is known around the courthouse, has been a member of the force at the county jail for six years. He has charge of the civil work of the sheriff's office.

Mr. and Mrs. Callaghan will make their home in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gibson and daughters, Misses Gertrude and Josephone, are spending a vacation in Yosemite Valley.

California Honored By Selection of H. Hoover

By D. E O'KEEFE

TODAY California shines in all its glory for it is to give its favorite son, Herbert Hoover, to the nation as a president, an honor bestowed upon it by the people of the United States, whose representatives met in convention at Kansas City during the week under the auspices of the Republican party. That convention, made up of delegates from every state in the Union, has selected Herbert Hoover to be its standard bearer in the coming campaign. He was practically the unanimous choice of the convention, which clearly demonstrated that he is the people's choice for the presidency, the one statesman and thinker competent and capable to grasp and solve the grave problems now confronting the nation.

Herbert Hoover, by his long and varied experience, is peculiarly fitted and qualified for Chief Executive at the White House and will measure up in the extreme in which he is held by the American people.

The nomination of Herbert Hoover at Kansas City yesterday means his election in November. In fact the fall election will only be a ratification of yesterday's action. He will sweep the country from ocean to ocean and from border to border The country has confidence in him, Herbert Hoover has made good wherever the people have placed him. When selected to feed the starving inhabitants of Belgium he performed his duties successfully, when called home to act as food administrator for the United States he again performed his work satisfactorily and when selected to take charge of the Secretary of Commerce's office at Washington, once more he demonstrated unusual ability and efficiency by bringing that department from an unimportant position to one of the big portfolios of the cabinet.

Herbert Hoover will make a great president, one whose name will be recorded high on the list of the illustrious presidents of the United States. He will bring glory to California by his constructive achievements as chief executive and honor to the nation by his wisdom and judgment and added distinction to the Grand Old Republican Party, which has chosen him as its standard bearer.

First Class Graduated From McKinley School

The McKinley School sent its first class of graduates out Wednesday evening with an interesting program in the school auditorium. There were 87 pupils in the graduating class. The new auditorium was filled to capacity with friends and relatives of the graduates.

The main speaker of the evening was District Attorney Franklin Swart, who though addressing his remarks to the class, gave a talk that was of interest to every person present. ## PERMIT GRANTED BAY TRANSPORT LANDING HERE

C. of C. To Hold Meeting Monday To Hear Details

WANT CO-OPERATION

Merchants Asked To Investigate Its Possibilities

Elmore B. Hinman, president of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce, was advised this week that the California Railroad Commission has granted to the Bay Shore Transport Co. a permit to call at Redwood City to pick up and discharge freight. The announcement came to Hinman in a letter received Tuesday from E. H. Scott of the Bay Shore Co.

In order that the matter may be thoroughly discussed by the merchants and manufactures of the city the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce on Monday will be devoted to transportation matters. Scott will be present as well as many of those in town who have extensive shipping.

It is believed that by co-operating with the transport company that considerably lower frieght rates may be available than are now offered by land transportation companies. It may be that some dredging may have to be done on the creek. This and other matters will be discussed Monday.

Redwood Boys' Team In Junior League

A team to represent Redwood City in the National Junior League is Bud Lambert's clubs, a team of boys from the higher grammar grades and coached by Lambert, 1925 baseball manager of the Sequoia high school. The members of the team are:

Tony Belice, Leo Leroy, Jim McGuire, Billie Byrd, Edwin Matheson, George Devin, Ward Baughn, Arthur Swanson, Mike Timbler, Vernal Kelley, Bob McGuire, Jim Adams, Tom Judge and Joe Judge.

A sum of $40,000 has been contributed by the National League for the formation of a Junior League, this fund will pay the traveling expenses of the various teams in the state and national championship games.

Popular Local Girl Announces Engagement

Miss Nelyl Jordan announced her engagement to Thomas Hanaford of San Francisco to a group of friends at her home on Junipero street Wednesday afternoon. The house was eautifully decorated in pink and green, and tasty refreshments were served by the young hostess.

Those present were Misses Alice Hays, Alda Silva, Pearl Beere, Florence Williams, Sue Silva, Luicle Maloney, Irma Nelson, Helen Foster, Alice Svihus, Edith Jordan and Mrs. Eliza Silva.

Miss Jordan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Jordan of this city. She is a pretty and accomplished young lady and very popular among the younger set of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. North of Edgewood road will leave today for a five months trip through Alaska and British Columbia.

Local Banker Named On Bankers' Council

Edward T. Harrison was honored this week at the convention of California bankers which met at Pasadena by election to a position on the executive council of the state bankers' organization. Harrison is vice-president of the First National Bank of this city. He and Lee T. Ross, president of the bank, were in attendance at the convention, representing the First National Bank and San Mateo County Savings Bank.

POLICE "SIT IN" AT SOCIABLE GAME

Twelve Jailed For Gambling at Poker In Five Points

A raid upon an alleged gambling resort at Five Points was made Tuesday evening by Redwood City police, under Chief of Police C. L. Collins and twelve men were arrested as gamblers. The raid was on Manuel's Place on the highway at Five Points. Collins states that when he raided the place a game of stud poker was in progress and that the men were making out checks to be cashed at the end of the game. With the chief in making the raid were Officers Thorpe, Snider and Fitzerald.

They took into custody Lorenzo Anoya, N. Valcasas, Simon Merez, Precheano Cepela, Louis Pena, Juan Carquesto, Manuel Lopez, Joe Moreno, B. Lopez, R. A. Pichel, Juan Kasitas and Valantine Torres. Bail was set for all but B. Lopez and Pichel at $20 each. The latter two were held for $50 bail. All but Lopez, Kasitas and Pichel raised the required bail.

All twelve appeared before City Judge A. Mansfield yesterday afternoon.

All were charged by Chief of Police Collins with gambling for money and all but Pichel and B. Lopez were fined $10 or given the alternative of spending 5 days in jail. Lopez and Pichel Chief Collins stated were notorious gamblers and make a practice of fleecing the working men of Five Points of their earnings, making it necessary for the Social Service Commission to keep their families. For this reason these reason these two were given an alternative of paying fines of $40 each or spending twenty days in jail. Judge aMnsfield stated that the next time these two appeared in his cour on a similar charge they would be given the limit in a jail sentence without an alternative of a fine.

Local Men Patenting Non-Glare Headlight

Two Redwood City men are securing a patent for a new type of headlight for automobiles. They are Charles A. Haas of 1020 Clinton street, the inventor of the light, and Henry C. McGowan, whose residence is in the Hotel Rudolph.

The new light which has been named the Haas Non-Glare Light, involves a new principal in headlight arrangement in that the light bulb is not in the rear of the light as in other types but is in front and above the reflector. The light, itself, cannot be seen under any circumstances from in front of a car using this type of lamp. All the rays from the bulb are reflected and sent froth as a straight beam of parallel rays from a reflector located in the rear of the lamp.

The lamp can, the inventor estimates, be manufactured for a price no higher than that of the ordinary type of lamp. A patent is being secured and the local men plan to begin manufacture within the near future. The new lamp has already attracted considerable favorable attention among automobile dealer s and manufacturers.

TWO SENTENCED ON BATTERY IN CITY JUDGE'S COURT

Eugene Leon and P. Garabaldi appeared for trial before City Judge Mansfield yesterday on a charge of battery preferred by Tony Castro, usher in the Sequoia theatre in this city. The two appeared last week for arraignment and entered pleas of not guilty. Teir trial was set for yesterday.

Yesterday both Leon and Garabaldi changed their plea to that of guilty. Leon was sentenced by Judge Mansfield to a fine of $15 or to spend 15 days in jail. He had been out on bail since his arrest last week.

The other defendant had been in jail for lack of the necessary cash bail. As he ad already spent a week in jail, Judge Mansfield gave him a suspended sentence of six months, but warned him to keep out of trouble during that time.

Mrs. Robert Branton of Roosevelt avenue is spending a few weeks in Long Beach visiting with friends and relatives.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

American Legion posts in California a few days ago were notified by State Adjutant James K. Fisk that an extension of time has been granted for the filing of the "bonus." Time for making applications under the adjusted compensation act has been extended to January 2, 1930.

Presentation of California tax information to the State Tax Commission, which now is studying revision of the revenue raising system, has been started by Professor Robert M. Haig, professor of economics at Columbia University, the commission's expert. Haig, however, still is gathering data, and the work of the commission will not be started for some time.

Paving the way for a legal fight, the state departments of finance and public works a few days ago announced refusal to pay the $328,000 claim of F. Rolandi, San Francisco contractor and builder of the Klamath river highway bridge in Del Norte county, which the state has never accepted. Rolandi has already been paid $317,000 for the bridge, defects in which, public works officials declared, have occasioned repair expenditures of $69,000 in state funds.

Historic Coloma, scene of gold discovery in California, witnessed its first church wedding last week since the poet, Edwin Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," married Annie Cox there in August, 185. The ceremony united Miss Hilda Herzig of Lotus, Eldorado county, and Ben Ruedge of Lodi. The Rev. C. W. Null of Placerville read the marriage service in a Coloma church erected in 1854, the first Episcopal church in Northern California save one at San Francisco.

Burning of grass along the highways of California is being resorted to extensively by the state highway and forestry departments to reduce the number and destructiveness of brush and grass fires, which at this early date already number more than 140. By burning the grass forestry officials point out there will be less danger of cigarettes, cigars and matches carelessly thrown from automobiles causing fires.

William Edward Hickman, under sentence of death for the murder of little Marian Parker of Los Angeles, will know within ninety days whether or not he is to hang. Final briefs in his appeal from the conviction were filed last week with the State Supreme Court, and under the law the court has ninety days to render its decision. The appeal is on a point of questioning the insanity law provision under which Hickman was convicted and sentenced.

A $10,000,000 bridge is to replace the famed Southern Pacific train-ferry between Benicia and Port Costa. Work on the bridge, which is to extend from Suisun Point on the south side of Carquinez Strait and east of Martinez to Army Point on the north short of the strait east of Benicia, will start within a few months. The new bridge will be a double track structure more than a mile long. The main span will have a clearance of 135 feet, sufficient to allow deep sea vessels to pass under it in safety. Construction of the bridge will mean changed schedules for the San Francisco Overland Limited, Shasta Limited and other trains of the company.

Nearly $1,500,000 in state highway bids will be advertised by the division of highways this week. This was announced by Bert B. Meek, state director of public works. The largest of the projects is the grading and surfacing, with California-type pavement, of five miles of the Bay Shore Highway between San Francisco and South San Francisco. The budget allots $600,000 for this work. Bids also will be advertised for paving approximately twelve miles of the Oxnard-San Juan Capistrano Highway between Oxnard and Santa Monica. This road was one of the projects included in the $40,000,000 bond issue authorized 1919. The cost of the work is estimated at more than $500,000.

Many an angler has sought his favorite fishing pool this year and sought in vain. The reason for this is that a great number of the heavily fished streams were closed by executive order of Governor C. C. Young and Fred G. Stevenot, director of natural resources, to all angling when the trout season opened May 1. Two classes of streams and tributaries are closed under the law which was adopted at the 1927 session of the California Legislature: First, those closed arbitarily because of the necessity of protecting the streams for egg-taking purposes by the division of fish and game, and second, streams recommended either by sportsmen's organizations or by petitions filed with the fish and game division by interested groups of citizens.

Establishment of border patrol stations on the main highways leading out of Northern California as a means of checking crime in the state is being considered by Frank G. Snook, chief of the motor vehicle department, on the showing of stations operated in the south. The southern stations are at Blythe, Daggett and Yuma. Reports received by Snook show many auto thieves are abandoning cars before they reach the stations rather than attempt to pass the police stationed there, who hold descriptions of stolen cars and hunted criminals.

No smoking in the national forests after June 10. And bring your shovel and axe along if you want to avoid plenty of grief. This is the edict issued by S. B. Show, chief of the California district, United States Forest Service. The rule applies in all of the 18 national forests in California. When in the national forests the only places smoking will be permitted is in camps and at places of habitation. The shovel and axe order provides that all motorists and pack train parties camping in the government forests shall be provided with these fire-fighting tools.

Despite the fact that "rookies" are barred this year, California's National Guard will achieve a record of more than 90 per cent of enlisted strength in attendance at training camp. This is the estimate of Adjutant General R. E. Mittelstaedt, who was preparing to accept, a few days ago, from contractors completed units of the new San Luis Obispo camp, on which $125,000 federal appropriation was expended this year.

Sale at par of $4,000,000 worth of California veterans' welfare bonds to the California National Bank of Sacramento was compiled at Sacramento recently by State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson. Johnson at the same time sold $250,000 worth of San Francisco harbor bonds to the Anglo and London Paris Company and the Bank of Italy, also at par.

Service men who are exempted by statute from paying licenses for peddling and hawkjng wares, are not thereby exempted from licenses required of merchants in fixed places of business, Attorney General U. S. Webb has decided. He says, furthermore, that in many municipalities operating under special charters, the state exemption is inoperative.

Former United States Senator for California, John D. Works, 81, died in Los Angeles, last week, at the hotel where he made his home. He was born in Ohio County, Indiana, in 1847, and came to Los Angeles in 1883. He was named a judge of the superior court for San Diego County in 1886, and two years later was appointed to the supreme court bench, remaining for three years. In 1911 he was elected as United States senator from California by the Republican Party.

California's total estimated daily average crude oil production increased 4,000 barrels during the week ended June 2, figures released by the American Petroleum Institute show. Total estimated daily average crude oil production for the entire state during the week of the report was 640,800 barrels, as compared with 636,800 barrels during the week ended May 26.

In spite of the fact that 229 prisoners left San Quentin during the month of May, the count on June 1 was eighty more than on May 1. Of the 4,363 prisoners, more than one half of them are below the age of 30 years, statistics show, and there are 105 women. White prisoners are in the majority in both male and female departments, with negroes second. There are 3,357 whites, 272 negroes, 58 Chinese, 23 Japanese, 27 Indians, 6 Hawaiians, 24 Filipinos and 12 Hindus.

Mr. Average Man's prerogative to step into the ballot box and have his say in things governmental is a costly right, according to a statement of election costs for 1927, made public last week. Although last year was an "off-season" politically, California cities and counties spent nearly $3,000,000 to maintain ballot box privileges, the report showed. Counties paid $2,065,118.32 to conduct elections during the year and cities contributed $912,291.59. The cost per voter, however, was only a little over $2 for the year.

Declared to have shattered all records in commercial aviation, one of the new tri-motored airships of the Western Air Express, carrying ten passengers and two pilots flew from San Francisco to Los Angeles one day last week in two hours and 35 minutes. The schedule calls for completion of the journey in three hours. The 360 air miles between the two cities were covered at an average speed of about 130 miles an hour, but a maximum of 170 miles was recorded on a part of the journey. The ship left Mills Field at 10:30 a. m., reaching the Los Angeles Field and discharging the passengers at 1:05 p. m.

The Spirit of St. Louis, which carried Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh from San Diego to Paris and fame, was California's outstanding contribution to the aviation world during 1927. Statistics compiled by the United States Commerce Department showed that during the year sixty-one airplane manufacturing establishments in the United States turned out 1857 planes valued at $12,024,085, and 105 seaplanes and amphibians valued at $2,226,520. California reported nine airplane manufacturing establishments in operation, being tied with Michigan for second place. The Spirit of St. Louis was built near San Diego.

California, as you of course know, already has an official flower—the poppy. And an officious animal—the bear. Ornithologists, however, felt that their pets had been over-looked. California should have an official bird. A straw vote, conducted by Professor Joseph Grinnell, curator of the University of California Museum of Vertebrate Zoology, on behalf of the Cooper Ornithological Club, has just been completed. The name of Quail led all the rest, as common to all parts of California, and pleasing to see and hear. A legislative committee is expected to take action shortly, to install the shy, but popular quail into the family of official California flora and fauna.

California a few days ago forced the Grizzly bear on the Great Seal of the State to lie down peacefully and eat grapes. The "bear tamer" was Marc J. Rowe, of Los Angeles, declared by State Printer Carroll H. Smith to be the first artist capable of making the California Grizzly "crouch at the feet of Minerva and feed on a cluster of grapevines," as the first State Legislature told him to do. Rowe's sketch of a new State seal for all future government printing was accepted. It will replace a half dozen other seals in which the bear ranged all the way from the cinnamon to the polar species.

For the first time in modern California court annals, six murderers were last week simultaneously sentenced to die on the gallows at Folsom prison. They are the six leaders in Folsom's bloody prison riot of last Thanksgiving Day, and Superior Judge Malcolm C. Glenn ordered the execution of them all on August 17. They took the verdict smiling, most of them, these six convicts who have faced three juries since the first of the year and twice been convicted of first degree murder.

POULTRY

RAISING TURKEYS IN CONFINEMENT

America's great holiday bird is getting ready to strut again in the Middle West just as his proud ancestor did years ago. The wild gobbler was once monarch of the feathered family in the woods that stretched up and down the Mississippi valley. As he disappeared from the timber, turkeys were brought into the barnyard and an attempt was made to tame them so they could be handled as chickens are today.

But disease drove them out. Then came the apparently erroneous theory that turkeys were delicate and could not be raised successfully unless they were given an open range where they could get plenty of exercise and catch grasshoppers and bugs. That theory has been disproved.

It is now known that turkeys can be successfully raised in close confinement. This may change the entire system so that in the future the laying, brooding and marketing season can be greatly lengthened. Turkeys may eventually be produced almost the year around and be brought in fresh from the farm every month in the year. Instead of turkey raisers marketing practically all of their surplus birds at Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday seasons, as they do at the present time, they will be able to furnish fresh ones winter and summer.

The production of squab turkeys, weighing from eight to ten pounds, on a year around basis may be developed in the future. It is at least made possible through the use of artificial incubators and brooders and the development of the confinement method of handling the birds. Breeders will have to change the laying habits of the turkey hen just as the poultrymen did with the chicken hen.

June Chicks as Easily Reared as Early Birds

June-hatched chicks are no more delicate than those hatched during the early part of the year, although some poultry-keepers think they are.

What makes them more difficult to rear without loss in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred is that they are run over ground that has been occupied by broods of chicks for months past.

You'll find the June chicks go ahead without mishap if only you'll give them a piece of fresh ground—ground that hasn't been used for any kind of fowls for four or five months. If you haven't much space you'll maybe find this difficult to manage, but failing grass land there is no reason why you shouldn't turn them out onto a piece of "turned" soil.

Test to Find When Eggs Will Become Fertile

A test conducted in Canada shed some light on the question of how soon after the male is introduced eggs become fertile. In this test five days after the introduction of the male half the eggs were fertile. On the seventh day 70 per cent of the eggs were fertile, and the per cent of fertility remained fairly constant at this figure.

Another test was conducted to see how long the eggs remained fertile after the male was removed. For the first four days 70 per cent were fertile. On the seventh, half of the eggs were fertile. On the tenth day after the removal of the male all were infertile.

Poultry Facts

Ask your county agent about the confinement method of growing chicks.

• • •

Feeding and housing of hens are the most important factors affecting the hatchability of eggs.

• • •

As a whole grain in the scratch feed, wheat is a very useful feed. It can be ground and used in the mash with good results.

• • •

If a turkey hen settles upon a suitable place to make her nest she should not be disturbed, but it is best to remove the eggs every day, leaving a china egg in the nest.

• • •

All notions of the warm house should be abandoned and a house built along lines that will furnish the best shelter.

• • •

As soon as the ducklings are all hatched, pick up the hen mother by the feet, hang head downward and ruffle the feathers before dusting well with insect powder.

• • •

Cannibalism among young chicks usually starts either from idleness or lack of a proper ration. Be sure chicks are fed properly and then keep them busy at all times.

• • •

Fine sand is best for the floor of the brooder house. The sand should be clean, sharp and sifted for young chicks.

• • •

Overcrowding the young chicks will cause heavy losses. Each four chicks should have at least one square foot of floor space in the brooder house.

• • •

Toe picking and cannibalism are common poultry worries. The cause is crowding too many chicks together under one hover, or an unbalanced ration—lack of protein and green stuff.

• • •

Roosters should be separated from the flocks during the months when no eggs are being used for hatching.

• • •

Swatting the rooster is the annual slogan, but guard breeding quality. If the young stock shows marked improvement over last year, don't sacrifice the sire without cause.

• • •

A good chick ration is also a good ration for young pouits. There is little need of preparing a special mash for the turkeys, if a suitable mash is being fed to the chicks.

Junk Laws For Each Ten Years

IT WOULD not be a bad idea, we believe, if all laws were passed for a period of years, say ten years, and at the end of that time would automatically become void unless passed again for another ten years. Laws are passed under one set of conditions to meet a necessity existing at that time. In a few years the conditions may have changed so greatly as to make that law absolutely useless, a mere dead number in our long list of prohibitions.

But although it may have been relegated to the limbo of unused legislation there is the possibility that this pensioned member of the statute fraternity may be brought back into force to suit someone's fancy and used to work a hardship on some individual or profession. A striking example of this was shown this week in a New Jersey town when a law passed in 1787 and long since forgotten was invoked to compel a picture show to close down on Sunday. It was invoked for this one purpose although the law if enforced would have caused the cessession of all forms of business or pleasure.

The statutes of every state are cluttered up with defunct laws which are never enforced. If these were automatically declared void at the expiration of each ten years and those whose provisions were considered in accord with public favor regenerated each decade it would clear the proceedure of the law and would inspire the general public with far more respect for the law and the proceedure of the courts.

Something To Think About

REDWOOD CITY is, we believe, on the edge of a great era of development The business district has been seen an amazing growth within the past three years, and if present conditions are any indications this is just the beginning of its development.

Redwood City though one of the oldest towns of the state is still in the formative period as far as the development of its business streets are concerned. A little planning at this time would return enormous dividends in beautification a few years hence.

Many cities, notably Palo Alto, have adopted a certain type of architecture to which all new buildings on the main streets must conform. In Palo Alto the Spanish type of architecture has been adopted. The planning commission sees to it that the plans of new buildings will harmonize with this type of building. The result is a beautiful and harmonious street.

The suggestion has been made by the Redwood City Promotion Association, and we believe that it is a good one, that Redwood City should adopt a similar rule in regard to new business buildings, and that all new buildings should be made to harmonize with some particular type of architecture. This will add greatly to the appearance of our main business streets

Another Highway Robbery

TOURISTS WHO VISIT the Southwest this coming fall in their own machines will not only find a good road from the Arrowhead Trail in Utah to the north rim of the Grand Canyon, but they will also be able to cross the Colorado River to the south bank over a new bridge now being built at Lee's Ferry, the only vehicular bridge across the untamed stream on a stretch of more than five hundred miles. When they cross that Lee's Ferry bridge, let them count the number of Navajo Indians they meet. The Navajos are charged with $100,000, approximately half the cost of the bridge. They were not consulted about this charge They were not asked whether they wanted a bridge. In fact, they didn't know anything about the bridge and the charge against them until the lower house of Congress had already appropriated the money. Then they protested, but the protest didn't stick. Their guardian, the Indian Bureau, had approved of the charge and defended it, fought for it, put it over. The Navajos didn't need and didn't want the bridge; it was built solely for the white tourist traffic, but the guardian of the desperately poor Navajos joyously agreed to make half the cost a charge against the tribal treasury. Think of these facts, friend tourist, as you cross the bridge. Take a look at the Indians you meet this summer; investigate the manner in which they have been and are being treated by the richest nation on earth. We guarantee you'll blush with shame as the black record unrolls before your eyes.—July Sunset.

Songs of Plain Folks

By James Lewis Hays

The Ocean

The ocean's a great mother;
Her children are the waves.
She sings to them and rocks them,
And everyone behaves.

But, nights, I hear them run
And play horse on the beach,
And gallop up and down—
Their mother out of reach.

Sometimes I wish I was a wave;
It makes an awful splash.
Oh, if I were a baby wave
I wouldn't be so rash.

One night, I sneaked and looked out;
The waves were in our sands,
Running like children in play,
And crawling on their hands.

They were laughing at the sea
Waving their foamy tassels;
They went right up to my sand pile
And knocked down all the castles!

Y. M. I. Ball Twirlers Defeat Visitors 5 to 1

By JOHN RYAN

The baseball team of Redwood Council, Young Men's Institute, climbed back into the win column last Sunday on the Sequoia diamond, when they squelched the attempts of the Grinnel Company's nine from San Francisco, by a 5 to 1 score. A large delegation of local fans was on hand to witness the fray.

Manager Al Bullivant's men started the fireworks in the second while Herm was fanning the great open spaces. "Toots" Johnson drew a walk. Ed Brook singled to drive Allain home and Ed Lawlor belted one for three bags to drive home the remaining two runs.

In the fifth inning with two down and the sacks deserted, Paul Bartolomei, third man up in the inning, was hit by a pitched ball and given a passport to first. Joe Britschgi and Allain connected for doubles to end the rally and send the final two local scores over the plate.

Pitcher "Tick" Hallett with eight strikeouts to his credit for the afternoon held the visitors scoreless until the ninth inning—when an untimely error, coupled with a single resulted in their only run.

"Toots" Johnson, a newcomer to the local outfit, handled himself well around the keystone sack, assisting in two double plays besides scoring a run in the second frame.

Brooks and Allain with two hits apiece, and Lawlor with a long triple led the home talents' artillery.

A real treat is in store for baseball fans next Sunday when the local institute team tackles the Young Men's Institute Pastimers from San Francisco—undisputed winners of the Midwinter League in the city. The game is scheduled for next Sunday at 2:30 on the Sequoia High School diamond.

Manager Bullivant is confident his cohort can take the measure of the Y. M. I. champs and promises all those present next Sunday a lively afternoon of first rate baseball.

Annual Garden Fete To Be Held June 20

The annual Garden Fete, held under the auspices of the Mount Carmel Men's Club, will be given on the evening of Wednesday, June 20th at the grounds of the Notre Dame Convent in this city. A pleasant evening, under beautiful electric lights, out in the open, a deck of cards, an enjoyable game of whist, fifty prizes and a keen contest, makes this affair one of the events of the year.

Dancing in the assembly hall with refreshments free for those who love the whirl of the two-step and waltz to alluring music is the program for those who prefer dancing to cards.

Auto Thriller To Be State Fair Feature

Two automobiles dashing at break-neck speed down a long incline, and one of the machines turning three loops over the other as they shoot through space before landing on a runway—this is announced by Chas. W. Paine, secretary of the State Agricultural Society, as the big thrill of the outdoor show at the State Fair, September 1st to 8th. The stunt, to be given each afternoon and night, is presented by ten people billed as the Fearless Greggs.

STATE FAIR TO SET RECORD IN CROP DISPLAYS

Every one of California's 143 commercial crops will be shown in the county displays at the California State Fair in Sacramento, September 1st to 8th. "There is not another state in the union with such a wide variety of crops," says R. A. Condee, president of the State Agricultural Society, "and with counties from all parts of California participating, the interior of the great Horticultural Pavilion will present a remarkable view."

In addition to the general exhibits on the main floor of the pavilion, there will be a plate display of choice products, entered in competition, on the balcony of the building.

The counties which have thus far reserved space are: Alameda, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Fresno, Humboldt, Imperial, Kern, ake, Lassen, Los Angeles, Mendocino, Mariposa, Monterey, Napa, Orange Placer, Riverside, Sacramento, San Bernardine, San Diego, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Santa Barbara, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Shasta, Siskiyou, Solano, Stanislaus, Tulare, Tuolumne, Ventura and Yolo.

It is expected that Sutter, Plumas and Alpine county will also have exhibits.

"County exhibits have been steadily increasing in number," says Charles W. Paine, secrtary of the Fair, "because the supervisors and fair commissioners realize that the best way to 'sell' their county is by showing thousands of people its actual resources and opportunities. With the State Fair attendance near the 300,000 mark each year, this exposition is growing in importance as an advertising medium for counties and their products."

Airplane Survey of Shore Road Planned

Making use of the lessons learned in the war, when enemy lines were surveyed and photographed by airplanes, the proposed Ocean Shore Highway from San Francisco to Santa Cruz may thus be surveyed by the city engineer's office of San Francisco. Plans are now being made, according to Clyde Healy, assistant city engineer, to have a complete recognizance of the route of the proposed reconstructed highway made by one of the airplane photography companies of San Francisco.

It is pointed out by Healy that by means of these airplane pictures a very comprehensive survey of the route can be made in a much shorter and better way than by means of the ordinary ground recognisance. Healy himself, he informed the National Automobile Club, which is sponsoring the reconstruction of this highway, will not be a member of the party which will consist only of the pilot and the photographer.

This method of making accurate and rapid surveys has been used on the Ocean Shore highway before. When the route was surveyed in Washington state the United States Bureau of Public Roads made an aerial survey of the proposed route. When completed the combined photographs gave a graphic picture of the country through which the planned highway was to be built.

Aerial surveys are made by specially equipped potographic airplanes which fly over the route of the highway at a specified altitude. The camera, which is pointed directly downward, is operated at a uniform speed by a small motor or by the hand of the photographer.

When these pictures are developed and printed, they are often matched into a mosaic strip map of the ground showing it in all its detail. Pictures are taken on films more than 100 feet long. Such aerial surveys permit the location of a highway with great accuracy, and eliminate much unnecessary labor and expense when the route is finally located by a ground survey party.

Pacific City Buildings Periled by Grass Fire

Grass fires thought to have been of incendiary origin twice periled the abandoned concession buildings of Pacific City Monday night. Both fires were extinguished by the San Mateo fire department. The former pleasure resort has grown up with high grass since it was abandoned years ago, and among the flames spread rapidly.

First Anniversary Week

June 10th to 17th

One Year of Progress:

On June 10, 1927, we acquired ownership control of this company.

On January 1, 1928, we introduced the completely new line of Graham-Paige motor cars which we returned to the industry to build.

Within three months of their introduction, this company enjoyed the greatest single month's business in its eighteen years' history.

Sales for the last three months exceeded those for the entire year of 1927.

To the public, which has made this progress possible, we express our gratitude and sincere appreciation.

One year ago, in our initial message, we said:

"The public expects motor car executives to keep abreast of the times and make their product constantly better. We shall earnestly strive to do so."

We believe you will find Graham-Paige motor cars abreast of the times—in engineering, in fine appearance and finish, and in ability to deliver genuine satisfaction.

You will find in the four-speed transmission (with standard gear shift) an engineering advance which results in distinctly improved performance at all speeds—a new motoring experience.

We invite you to ride in and drive a Graham-Paige and form your own conclusions as to the quality and substantial value of these new motor cars.

County Planning Delayed on Advice Of District Attorney

Acting upon the advice of District Attorney Swart, the county board of supervisors Monday again delayed action on the formation of a county planning commission. When the district attorney was asked for an opinion on the formation of a planning commission as adopted by Los Angeles and Santa Barbara counties, Swart said that he believed that portions of the law under which the planning commission was formed in the southern counties was unconstitutional and would result in trouble and expense.

Swart stated that his objection was purely technical and was not in opposition to the formation of such a commission here. It was merely for the purpose of saving this county unnecessary expense later on.

The board laid the matter over and voted to send the district attorney to Los Angeles to investigate the working of the law in that county. A final report will be rendered by the district attorney on July 2.

By the operation of the Boggs Act, the rural districts would gain 17 additional seats in the Senate. The act provides that no county shall have more than one senator and that no senator shall represent more than three counties. San Francisco, under the old strict population basis, has 7 senators; Los Angeles, 8; Alameda, 4; and Santa Clara county 2. Santa Clara county, however, is backing the new plan, as its interests are largely agricultural and it would benefit by the added strength of the farm bloc as a whole.

Plans for the state-wide campaign for the farm reapportionment plan are now being drafted and it is expected that a corps of farm leaders, together with senators and assemblemen from the rural districts, will stump the state for the measure.

INQUEST HELD HERE ON LAKE DROWNING

Woman's Death Held To Be Accidental By Coroner's Jury

An inquest was conducted here Wednesday morning by Coronor J. C. McGovern into the death of Mrs. Frances Mary Norton, whose body was found Sunday morning in Searsville Lake. The jury found that Mrs. Norton had come to her death accidentally, apparently by falling into the lake. A wound on the back of her head was thought to have been caused by striking a rock when she fell.

Mrs. Norton, accompanied by her husband and a party of friends was camping for the night near the lake. Just when she left the camp is not know, but her absence was discovered Sunday morning. A search for her was started and before noon her body was found in about twenty feet of water.

Sidney Baker, brother of Mrs. Norton, and three life guards at the lake, succeeded in bringing the body to the surface and to shore, where resuscication methodws were employed without avail.

Mrs. Norton was a native of England and was 36 years af age. She had been working in a laundry in San Francisco. The funerdl was held in San Francisco Tuesday.

Legion Men Enjoy Dinner Here Monday

Members of Redwood City Post No. 106 American Legion enjoyed a dinner at the Episcopal parish house Monday evening at which members of the San Mateo, Burlingame and Palo Alto posts were guests. More than fifty ex-service men were present.

Sheriff J. J. McGrath of this county was to have been the speaker of the evening, but as he was unable to be present Deputy Sheriff Edward Farrell took his place and gave an interesting talk on criminal identification. Gor-Seeley gave a short talk on the junior athletic league being fromed here. Dr. R. E. Frazier, commander of the local post, presided at the meeting.

Dave McCullough of San Mateo gave a very enthusiastic talk on behalf of the Junior League baseball team, which led to the adoption of Bud Lambert's well-known team to represent the Relwood City Post in the league. Gordon Seeley gave a spirited talk on forming a Redwood City Athletic Club which was heartily endorsed by the Legionnaires. Considerable discussion was also had in regard to forming a community band and of adopting a uniform for the legion post.

Roy Hohberger added a very pleasant feature to the program by several lively numbers on the piano.

Legion Members To Visit With San Mateo Post

Members of the Redwood City Post of the American Legion will visit the San Mateo Post at their club rooms on Bellevne avenue in San Mateo Monday evening. The Flying Squadron, a visitation committee from San Francisco will be at the San Mateo Post on that evening.

On the following Monday, June 26, the Flying Squadron will visit the local post. Commander Frazier is anxious to have as large an attendance as possible from the local post at both these occasions.

FATHER COMES INTO HIS OWN SUNDAY

June 17 to be Nationally Observed As Father's Day

Dad comes into his own this coming Sunday, June 17, will be nationally observed as Father's Day. It will be generally celebrated in many homes.

It's Father's Day by the ordainment of somebody who had a proper appreciation of just what a vital role "the old man" plays in this human scheme of things.

Being a humble and modest sort of creature, dad probably would have returned an emphatic negative, if they'r asked him if he wanted a day set apart for his especial benefit. But they didn't consult him and so, for weal or for woe, he must take what comes along on Father's Day.

Giving a dad a measure of the credit that is his due just one day of the year isn't such a bad idea, after all.

All the other days of the year dad's worikng for almost everybody but himself. The baker and milkman, the landlord and the coal man expect dad to do hisduty no matter what happens. And dad usually comes through. Often it's a hard pull, often the road is a tough one but dad somehow hurdles the obstacles and measures up to the standards society has laid down for him.

So, Father's Day deserves recognition. For one day dad is entitled to the softest seat in the house. He's entitled to the best reading light and so forth!

Scoffers may gibe at the ads suggesting the gift of neckwear, shirts, ties, hats, cigars or a jar of tobacco for father next Sunday.

And dad will pretend he has not read them, but he will look for them from the corner of his eye as he passes and feel a certain satisfaction whether he subscribes to the weed or not.

He knows it is an evidence of appreciation, suggested by other dads perhaps, but setting him apart for the moment.

District Attorney Franklin Swart will attend the state convention of district attorneys to be held June 21, 22 and 23 at Del Monte.

Death of Butler Due To Natural Causes

A coroner's jury which heard testimony regarding the death of Fred Perrill, Woodside butler, Wednesday decided that the deceased came to his death by natural causes. The immediate cause of his death, it was found, was heart trouble. The inquest was held by Coroner J. C. McGovern at the parlors of the James Crowe Undertaking Co.

Perrill was a butler at the home of Mrs. George B. Somers of Woodside. He was found unconcious at the Somers home Friday and was rushed to the Community hospital, where he passed away shortly afterwards. The funeral was held Tuesday in San Mateo. Perrill is survived by his wife, who is also employed on the Sommers estate.

San Carlos People Vote for School Bonds

San Carlos residents by a vote of 106 to 15 passed a bond issue of $40,000 for the purchase of a new school site and for equipment of the present school. The election was held Tuesday.

INCREASED ACREAGE OF PEACHES RESULTS IN BIG PRODUCTION

Growers Anxious In Regard to Prices

By LAWRENCE MONFORT
(Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, June 14—How to turn peaches into gold is the problem confronting California growers today. Faced by a potential crop of 395,000 tons of clingstones this season, as compared with 320,000 tons last year, the farmer's universal query is "what price peaches?"

Last year the canners packed but 320,000 tons of clings. This season while the administration assures there will be no "peach war," probabilities are that the price paid the grower will be moderate if not actually as low as that of the 1927 season, according to semi-official advices.

A conference this week will be held by growing and canning interests, which, if it does not materialize an agreement on prices, will result in conciliatory action by Governor Young's peach conference committee, which forecasts production of 393,277 tons of clingstones this season.

The state's total peach crop is expected to be 602,000 tons of which 207,000 tons will be freestones, according to the estimate of E. E. Kaufman, agricultural statistician and N. I. Nielsen, fruit statistician of the federal-state crop reporting service.

Condition of clings is about 84 per cent normal as of June 1, and that of freestones 76 per cent. The cling acreage is 35 percent greater than two years ago when but 327,000 tons were produced. The 1927 production was 322,000 tons.

Prospects for all classes of clings north of the Tehachapi are good, according to Kaufman and Nielsen, while fairly light crops are in prospect in southern California.

Ray Tinney To Play At Kiwanis Conclave

Raymond Tinney of this city and Palo Alto will appear on the program of the Kiwanis International convention at Seattle, Washington, next week. Tinney, who is a well-known musician, will play several numbers on the marimba at the big convention. Tinney's ability with this instrument has earned him a reputation throughout the Pacific coast.

Kiwanians Hear How State Is Run

Comparing the state to a great business concern in which each citizen is a stock holder and the state legislature is the board of directors, Senator M. B. Johnson addressed the members of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club Wednesday on the functions of the state government. Senator Johnson emphasized the fact that one of the features which handicaps the state legislature in its work is the great number of bills. At the last session he stated the legislature had to handle 2500 different measures in a space of three and a half months.

At every session of the legislature, Senator Johnson stated, more bills are considered than are before the United States Congress in two years in which it is in session.

Senator Johnson explained the manner in which he has been working for a simplification of the state government by combining under a few heads a great number of committee and commissions which have heretofore been acting independent of each other and answering directly to the governor.

The chairman of the meeting was County Engineer George A. Kneese. Mrs. Dana, who is in charge of the San Mateo County Preventorium at San Mateo, was present and explained the work of that institution in caring for children who are subject to tuberculosis.

Y. M. C. A. Party To Study Orient

Twenty-one older boys of the Y. M. C. A. of San Francisco and vicinity left San Francisco on Tuesday for a two month tour of the Orient. Accompanying the boys are three men. While enroute the boys will be given a course which will give them the history and general balkground of the people with whom they would come in contact. The manners and customs also are to be studied so that there would be a better understanding. This course is given on each of the countries to be visited. The instructor is a college professor who is well acquainted with the Orient.

Mr. F. Hunt, executive secretary for the Mission Branch Y. M. C. A., is in charge of the party.

Special privileges will be given the party through the Y. M. C. A. of the Orient.

In addition to the regular camps open to the boys of California under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. the second annual outing to the top of Mt. Whitney will be made the end of this month. Inasmuch as the climb is a hard one, older boys and their fathers are eligible to make up the party.

MYSTERY VEILS PRODUCTION AT NASH FACTORY

While business and financial circles are stirring with the discussion of recent automobile company mergers and proposed consolidations, the deepest mystery cloaks activities in and about a number of the great American automobile manufacturing plants.

Persistent rumors of new car models — some fantastic, some based on the fringe of fact — some have been afloat for weeks. They whisper that new and revolutionary types of cars are about to be introduced.

One of the principal "storm centers" for this speculation surrounds the big Nash Motors plants in Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, where all indications point to the introduction of an entirely new type of automobile.

For more than a year the highly organized manufacturing forces under the leadership of C. W. Nash, whose mastery of design and mechanical adaptation has been acknowledged in the industry since its earliest days, have been working with unprecedented secrecy.

Experimental departments and test divisions have operated behind barred doors and gates. Vast quantities of new machinery and equipment, guarded like treasury shipments, have been fitted into the precise production lines. Night conferences and overtime work in the closely curtained factories have kept the power plants humming; but only an occasional glimpse of a new motor part or a momentarily revealed body has rewarded attempts of the curious to discover details of the new Nash creation.

Even now when, plant officials admit, the new Nash cars have completed their last exhaustive tests and have come through their final meticulous inspections, and when the entire manufacturing organization is keyed up as never before over the car's performance, few details of its construction or its innovations have been revealed.

Details of an entirely new Nash motor have been guarded with particular secrecy but it is said on good authority that because of its advanced design, the new engine will out-perform anything heretofore placed on the market. It is understood that the motor will prove one of the big surprises of the Nash announcement.

Bodies for the entire line are said to be new in design and treatment and as far in advance of current coachwork as tried and proved Nash practice can make them. Thoroughly American in principle, the design is also said to include a distinctive European touch, carefully adapted to meet the peculiar modern traffic conditions of teeming city streets and high-speed country arteries of the United States.

Company officials have set June 21st as a definite date for the public appearance of the new models. These new models will represent an engineering achievement which has been the goal of the Nash organization ever since the company's inception.

Woodside

The graduating exercises of the Woodside School were held on Friday last. The graduating class was small this year, there having been but three pupils in the eighth grade. These three received their diplomas and will be pupils of the Sequoia Union High School next year. They were Phyllis Blackington, Marie Hubell and Carl Shine. A very pretty feature of the program was a fairy play produced by the little tots from the lower grades.

The Parent-Teacher Association held a picnic at the home of Mrs. J. W. Christensen on the property of the Bear Gulch Water Co. on Wednesday. A treasure hunt through the redwood groves and various outdoor games sped the afternoon very pleasantly.

Miss Evelyn Meyer and Miss Helen Abrams have been visiting Mrs. Virginia Miller at Seattle. They will return this week and Mrs. Miller and her son Donald will accompany them. Mrs. Miller will spend the summer with her mother and grandmother here.

Oliver Gish will return home today from the hospital, where he has been spending a week as the result of a motorcycle accident.

The out-going and in-coming officers of the Parent-Teacher Association will be entertained today at the home of Mrs. George Givens the past president of the order.

A large party was entertained on Sunday last by Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cannon. The Cannons are occupying the Virden place at Portola for the summer.

The choral section of the California Club of San Francisco held its annual picnic at the home of Mrs. John D. Gish on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mackenzie and family removed to San Francisco on Monday and the home they left was immediately occupied by James Wilkie and family.

Dr. Bradford Leavitt and family are expected to arrive from Pasadena for the summer on the 25th.

President John Layng, Past-president Charles Lambert and Sam Winklebleck of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club will leave tomorrow for Seattle to attend the international convention of the Kiwanis organization.

Three Vice Charges To Be Heard Monday

Trial of three persons on charges of conducting and of being inmates of a disorderly house will be heard before Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe. The three are John Sepulveda, Carrie Sepulveda and Peggie Miller. The first two are charged with conducting such a house and the third with being an inmate of the same.

The three persons were arrested last week by Sheriff McGrath on the complaint of Frank Osorio of this city. They entered pleas of not guilty before Justice of the Peace McAuliffe Wednesday and all released upon the payment of $150 cash bail each.

Firemen Lead Score Of 12 to 3 in Ball Game

The Redwood City Firemen's baseball team had little trouble in extinguishing the National Magnesia Company's outfit in a seven inning slugfest played last Sunday morning on the Sequoia diamond. When the smoke of battle cleared away the fire laddies stood on the long end of a 12 to 3 score.

"Tony" Prusch and Brent Werder led the winners battling—each connecting for two homers. Prusch also added a double to his collection of hits for the afternoon. Cowan, catcher for the mags had the best average of the day, getting two safe hits in three trys to the plate.

The summary:

Graham Paige-Dealer Tells of New Features

Many of the features of the two larges sixes and the Graham-Paige eight are incorporated in the Graham-Paige Model 614 which was displayed in The Dumbarton Garage for the first time last week, says Carl Lindquist, Graham-Paige dealer.

"Some of these features are: water jacket running the full length of the cylinder bore, positive driven water pump, silchrome exhaust valves, air cleaner, mechanical fuel pump, four wheel hydraulic brakes, anti-friction b earings in steering knuckles, adjustable windshield, steel running boards, four shock absorbers, four-point rubber engine suspension, thermostat in cooling system, oil filter, coincidental steering and ignition lock, and stop light.

"The standard equipment includes a rear view mirror, robe rail, dome light, foot rest, automatic winshield wiper and silk curtain for the rear window. Speedometer, ameter, oil pressure gauge, water temperature indicator and gasoline gauge are located on the indirectly lighted instrument panel.

"The cooling is especially efficient. The water is circulated by a centrifugal pump and controlled by an automatic thermostat. The cylinders are jacketed the full depth of the piston stroke. Engine lubrication is by full pressure feed to all main bearings and crank pins, camshaft, water pump shaft and valve lifters.

"The mechanically driven fuel pump for gasoline is driven by an eccentric on the camshaft and its speed therefore varies with the speed of the engine. Thus the engine is assured of sufficient fuel for any condition of speed and load.

"The clutch is of the single-plate type, and incorporates the newly developed vibration dampener used in the larger models. The rear axle is semi-floating, with the drive pinion straddle-mounted between two sets of ball bearings. The gear ration is 3.9 to 1.

"The four wheel brakes are Lockheed hydraulic, contracting on 14 inch brake drums. An improvement is the automatic compensating device on the master cylinder, which maintains a full supply of liquid in the pressure system and automatically compensates for any difference in volue caused by heat or cold.

"The front and rear springs are semi-elliptic. The front springs are 36 inches long, and the rear springs are 58 inches—unusually long for a car of this length, being more than half the wheelbase.

"Either wood or disc wheels are supplied without additional charge wire wheels may be obtained at extra cost. Tires are 29 by 5.25.

"In appearance, the new model duplicates the lines of its four companion chassis models, having all the features that distinguish the larger sizes and eights, including the convex guarded radiator, nickel radiator shell and headlamps, low-hung appearance, wide fenders, cadet visor and harmonious color scheme.

"In the standard sedan, the lower are Japanese blue, the upper panels and mouldings black, with the window reveals in blue. All striping is in ivory. Wheels are blue with black hubs.

"The coupe is in gray, with black upper panels, and gray window reveals. Wheels are in the body color. with black hubs and ivory stripes.

"Both bodies have double mouldings, striped in ivory, while the louvres of the hood also are edged with ivory."

Filmdom's Most Glamorous Siren Seldom Goes Out

The screen's most vivid feminine personality—who plays seductive charmers in gorgeous settinys, glittering cafes and glamorous resorts— in real life never invades such tinsled haunts, and wouldn't know what to do there, if she did.

Greta Garbo, famous for her glittering roles, seldom stirs from her home, except to go to the studio. In fact, Hollywood calls her "the girl who never goes anywhere," because she is never seen at parties or any of the social functions of the screen colony.

"I'd just rather stay at home," she says. "It's not that I think it is wrong to go out to social gatherings and have a lot of fun. It's just that I find more contentment in my own home where I can read, study the English language and try to improve my mind."

Miss Garbo, on the screen, is an exotic beauty always surrounded by men, and, usually, in surroundings that suggest glamor and revelry. Away from the screen her tastes are simple and she even likes to do housework.

Miss Garbo even admits that she does not like to play the seductive roles usually assigned her. "Anything but 'vamps'," says Greta. Yet she has made such a sensational hit in such roles that it is doubtful whether the picturegoing public would permit her to change her type of roles—even if the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer studio would.

Greta's latest M-G-M starring vehicle is "The Divine Woman," a screen adaptation of Gladys Unger's "Starlight," in which Doris Keane was starred on the speaking stage. Her role is that of a celebrated French actress who moves against a background of luxury and adulation.

The picture, which is considered the best she has yet appeared in during her two years in America, will be shown at the Sequoia theatre next Monday and Tuesday, June 18 and 19. It was directed by Victor Seastrom and the cast includes such celebrated players as Lars Hanson, Dorothy Cumming, Lowell Sherman, Johnny Mack Brown, Cesare Grovina, Polly Moran, Paulette Duval, Creighton Hale, Jean de Brias, Edward Connelly and others.

Action by County Forming Commission Meets with Delay

When the matter was brought before the board last week District Attorney Swart stated that great care should be given to drawing up the resolution forming the commission and that he would like to go into the matter more thoroughly than he had had time to do before. For that reason the subject was laid over for one week.

When the matter was first brought before the board, it was suggested by Fred Drake that the board appoint themselves as the members of the planning commission. This seemed to meet with favor by the board but has been the subject of considerable criticism on the outside. Whether or not this plan will be adopted is not Going away... for a rest?

WE ALL look forward to the annual rest period—vacation time. But many of us fail to get the greatest benefit from that rest. In the back of our minds is the little imp "Worry"—about the folks at home—about business.

There is one sure cure for this ailment common to most vacationists. Keep in touch with home and with business by telephone. Every vacation spot is just a few minutes away by this rapid, dependable and economical service.

And when you're planning the big vacation, let the telephone aid you again by assuring just the travel and hotel accommodations you want. To telephone in advance for reservations is the best insurance against disappointment.

SYNOPSIS

On a certain Monday morning Miss Constance Fuller, seller of rare books at Darrow's Bookshop, New York, notices that the first customer is a dignified old gentleman, who saunters into the alcove placarded "Medical Works." Peter Burton, one of the employees, amazes Constance by telling her he paid $510 at auction for an old law book containing a Colfax bookplate. Suddenly a girl's shriek of "Murder!" rings out. The elderly customer is on the floor unconscious, with his right wrist slashed. Just before the shrieking girl falls in a faint, she calls out to Peter: "Keep it! Keep it for me!" Peter's sister, Nancy, began that morning working at Darrow's. Nancy tells Constance of her elopement with Brandon Tower, an elopement which was cut short when Tower attended to make off with Nancy's suitcase. Constance explains Darrow's card-index system to Captain Ashland, a nephew of Mr. Darrow's. They examine the book Peter paid $510 for and find the bookplate to be a forgery. Constance is asked to assist Detective Almy in his investigation of the murder of the elderly gentleman. The girl who fainted, Julia Grosvenor, turns out to be his granddaughter. She can throw no light on the mystery. Constance calls on Julia, who seems relieved when told her cry, "Keep it for me!" was not unheeded. Darrow orders Constance to remove the bookplate from the book.

In emulation of her cheerful industry, the water in the little aluminum pot began to bubble merrily, and three minutes later—the correct time, I believe, for tea to draw—Captain Ashland was drinking the brew which, with the crown, unites the British empire. The two other gentlemen did not have to be coaxed long to join him, so my judgment in laying in plenty of tea proved correct. The captain sat happily in a big oak armchair, Mr. Roberts accommodated his length of limb to the radiator, and Mr. Case leaned gracefully on a filing cabinet, all chatting cozily of this and that, while the rain descended and the wind blew, and Nancy contributed a one-act educational sketch, cabaret-fashion, with a partner in the person of a messenger boy who came in with a package for Darrell's on Fifth avenue.

"Isn't this ripping!" cried the captain, radiantly. "Of course I know it's not manners to ask, but mayn't I have another cup?"

As he leaned forward to pass his teacup, his glance fell casually on the worn calfskin binding of Clarihew's "Notes," still on top of the desk. He picked the book up deliberately, opened the cover, and again gazed with interest at the laboratory interior giving on the distant sea. "I fancy Miss Fuller thinks I'm never happy unless I'm stopping some one else's work and doing none myself," he observed. "This time she was all ready to soak off this bookplate, when I did what you call horned in, and asked for another American tea party!"

Mr. Case smiled politely.

"Yes, we're to sell the book and bookplate separately, I hear."

"One often does better that way," observed Captain Ashland. "I don't know about prices here. I understand the book was expensive—five hundred and ten dollars, wasn't it? What would this curious bookplate likely fetch?"

Horror and amazement filled my soul and that of Mr. Roberts, whose glance intercepted mine as the captain thus calmly added, to the list of disasters he had witnessed at Darrow's in less than four days, the fact that he was informed of the worst fake in buying that had befallen the house for years. Who had told him? Not I, nor Mr. Roberts, not Peter, assuredly; yet all of us might have sooner than the uncle who so desired, for some mysterious reason to impress him favorably. Mr. Case was equal to the situation, however, choosing, as he did, to answer the first of the two questions.

"I hadn't heard what was paid for the book," he said.

"I'm especially interested in this bookplate," went on the captain, dnally accepting his teacup, "because when I saw it here at Miss Fuller's desk the other day, when I was studying your index, I noted directly how closely it resembled the work of one of our most famous engravers, Hugh Colfax, though it was, unmistakably, a counterfeit."

"How did you observe that?" inquired Mr Roberts. "Yes, I will take another cup. If you please, Miss Fuller. And may I look at the print captain if you have finished with it?"

"But it's not a print, you see," said the captain, passing over the book. "It's really a drawing, an awfully clever imitation of a fine line engraving. I'm hardly ashamed to say I didn't detect the forgery until I had looked at the plate hard. Many a collector has been fooled by imitations inferior to this one. Still, there are suspicious things about it: for instance, the paper. Colfax always favored a peculiar shade of brown."

"This is brown," said Mr. Roberts.

"Yellow-brown," corrected Captain Ashland, "and no doubt the best that could be got; but Colfax used a special buff tinted paper which he colored himself by some secret process—probably involving walnut juice—which, however, died with him. He was a great artist, full of whims. I've seen many of his prints, all done on that shade of paper, and, of course, on a paper a century or more old, made of linen rags. This is of modern manufacture, made of wood fiber."

"Colfax died about eighteen-thirty, didn't he?" I inquired.

"Yes; he was about seventy-five, I believe. The arithmetic gave me another reason for doubting the authenticity of this drawing," said the captain, looking whimsical. "Colfax, you see, was a patriot first and an artist afterward—"

I laughed and helped him out:

"He never would accept orders from Americans because he absolutely opposed the Revolution. And as it seems likely that this old American law book must have been the property of an American, it doesn't seem likely that the plate would have been designed by Colfax."

"Especially," added the captain, "as the design is pictorial. As was natural enough in a man with Colfax's royalist sympathies and aristocratic clientele, he almost always made heraldic designs for bookplates—that is, designs showing the family coat of arms. Only something out of the common would have led him to make a pictorial plate, if he ever did."

"May I have a look at it now?" asked Mr. Case, as Mr. Roberts closed the book to drink his nonsensical tea.

"Rather an imaginative picture, isn't it?"

"All except the immediate foreground," agreed Captain Ashland. "That table covered with old instruments—I don't recognize many of them—looks very realistic, and the alembic and skull are conventional owners' symbols used on many a doctor's bookplate. What the rest of the picture signifies, one could hardly tell without knowing something about the owner."

"The ship looks realistic, to me," observed Mr. Roberts, absolutely unable to refrain from differing with some one any longer. "Maybe the owner was a sailor. And what about those good strong pillars? Maybe he was an ex-sea-captain. They always build a good substantial house somewhere, to retire to."

"Such classic columns," said I instructively, for I couldn't let Mr. Roberts contradict and not do so myself "are often used as a purely conventional frame for a bookplate picture."

Mr. Case nodded approvingly, but the captain, intent on making another point, noticed none of us. He said:

"And there's an unmistakable give away in the signature; did you notice it, Miss Fuller?"

"Yes," I assented; "the 'circled serpent,' as it's called, is quite wrong."

"Yes, his tail is in his mouth, as it should be, but the mouth is open not closed. It's a very strange error in detail, for the general execution of that drawing shows a marvelous grasp of Colfax's characteristic method—bold, a few fine lines of shading, wonderful clearness in the smallest details. It's just the difference between the master and the imitator."

"What Would This Curious Bookplate Likely Fetch?"

"Another instance where a closed mouth would have been the part of wisdom!" suggested Mr. Case, lightly. He closed the book and put it into my hand, and as I laid it on the desk, Nancy's cheerful clatter ceased. She looked at me expectantly; I saw she had finished all the work assigned her, and was looking for more.

I was just about to give her some directions when she stepped up quietly and pointed to a pile of books in front of me.

"Shall I take those now?" she asked.

"Yes, please," I said, "and then place them all on the wagon to be returned to the shelves."

She avidly swooped up everything in sight; yes, thanks to her industry Clarihew's "Notes" would be listed after all! Her enthusiasm for work seemed contagious. The teapot was now drained, and Captain Ashland moved that the session should adjourn with a rising vote of thanks, and inquired eagerly, as he took his leave, if I did not really think we really ought to have tea every day.

CHAPTER VII

Night Watch.

"Tell me, shall you be able to sell the book and the bookplate separately for five hundred and ten dollars together?" demanded Nancy.

I had to wait one whole second before deciding what to say, and it took her far less than that to transfer herself to the large oak chair Jus. vacated by the captain, and a thick pile of papers to my desk. "Please look at my work and tell me if it is right, so I can go on," she requested. "And what about the five hundred and ten dollars?"

"If you want to get on at all, you will have to occupy yourself with what concerns you," I said.

"Wait a minute! There's more about the book. Just now Wilkes nearly died after I'd said I'd do what she told me!"

"You haven't mentioned that occasion."

"And hour ago she asked me to help you, though it would be an ordeal, especially since I was inexperienced I said I was here to learn; besides, all my letters were finished, though the other girls' weren't. Then she asked me, very sweetly, to inquire of Mr Case, who was always so nice, whether there had been any offer yet for that old law book she had sent down to you by me on Monday afternoon. She said her cousin, Magistrate Juddes, would give a hundred dollars for it if that would be enough."

"And you have not asked Mr Case! Nancy, it's vulgar to wink."

"And I am really most refined, as anybody can see. When have I had a chance to ask Mr Case anything? I had only time to stop in the stockroom and look at their telephone directory while I was telling Dennis to go up and say I found my typewriter would be required, after all; and there really is a Magistrate Juddes. And now it's no use asking Mr. Case. Miss Wilkes will just have to accept the fact that the book's going into the catalogue. Listen, Constance: where do you keep it?"

"Why do you want to know?"

"I'm worried about it, on Peter's account. I want it to be safe. Maybe with a fake bookplate, he'll be in a worse hole than ever. Perhaps if you have it right by you, you might have a chance to make somebody buy it for more than Magistrate Juddes would offer."

I felt touched.

"Nancy, dear," I promised, "I'm going to write the most alluring possible advertisement of that volume, and also of the bookplate. No Juddes shall lay his marauding fingers upon it until the world is apprised of all its charms; and until Juddes or some similar Juggins with money to waste comes along, it shall remain here in the lowest left-hand drawer of my desk."

Nancy went back to work, satisfied; we labored steadily through the chorus of "Good nights" from the evening exodus. Only for Peter did I stop one moment.

"I'm going up tonight to a place called Raynes Foreside to buy a lot of horrible old trash," he informed me discreetly, viewing Nancy's back. "Kid's doing better, eh?"

"She's a great worker," I compromised.

I looked at Peter's downcast face and a thought that had occurred to me over the steaming kettle reverted. I felt convinced that he was carrying some heavy secret burden relating to Julia Grosvenor. I had never forgotten that state of frantic alarm which had seized him on the threshold of Mr. Case's office last Monday, though ever since his manner had been so calm as to be almost unnatural, particularly when he and I had been talking to Mr. Almy. If I could have only told him of my visit to Julia, of her recognition of him in the shop, her relief on hearing that he had denied all understanding of her exclamation! But knowing that that visit was confidential, I merely said:

"Buck up, Peter! It's up to you to come back from Raynes—whatever it is—with your shield or on it. Others can be relied on to keep the home fires burning."

Peter looked grateful but said nothing, for at that instant Nancy swung round and saw him. He put man's first question to woman.

"When are you going home?" he inquired sternly.

"At six o'clock," said Nancy, sweetly, viewing him with calm appraisal. "Constance, come and have dinner with us."

"No, thank you—thank you both very kindly," I repeated as Peter urged the invitation on me brightly.

"If you won't come to dinner tonight, you must come and stay with me all night tomorrow," declared Nancy, tenacious as usual of her wishes, "or I'll be all alone."

"That's a fine idea!" exclaimed Peter.

"Yes; it was mine," said his sister. "Will you come, Constance?"

"I shall be delighted, my dear, to help the eight other occupants of the house bear you company."

"One for you, Nance!" cried Peter. "Well, Constance, good-by till Saturday at the latest. I'm off for Plymouth Rock and way stations!"

Nancy and I worked alone in the silent shop, without further interruption. The silence of the big building was restful and unbroken, save by a distant, infrequent rumble of late traffic. Not until I had nearly finished dinner, sent in to me, did I hear a single sound in the shop. Then, unexpectedly, far back, I heard a faint movement.

It was repeated . . . It came again . . . pattering footsteps sounded on the left hand aisle. Next minute a dim figure materialized in the dusk as I turned, and to my relief, ever more than my surprise, I recognized Mr. Case just as he started back in amazement, close at my left.

"Why, I thought you'd gone to dinner," I said matter-of-factly.

"I thought you had," he countered. "Everybody else has who's going to work tonight. I was just doing some of my work now, because I like a late dinner hour. The rain has nearly stopped. Why don't you go out and get something better to eat?"

Odd Mixture Made of Business and Religion

In uptown New York there is a negro church in which attending services is an all-day affair on Sundays. The congregation spends from eight to ten hours in the house of prayer, and meals and social circles interlard sermons and Bible classes.

Perhaps the most practical feature of the weekly gathering has to do with business. Members of the flock are invited to pass along their special wants to the pastor and he in turn proclaims them from the pulpit. Thus, if one has a piano or a parlor set for sale it may be described as alluringly as desired, the price mentioned and the name and address of the "brother" or "sister" broadcast. If one wants a job or a boarder the details are set forth in the same manner. Recently a case of theft was handled as follows:

"Mah dear brothers an' sistern. Mis Amanda Rose Abernathy has lost her beautiful pearl brooch—at least she likes to think it were lost, but she know the devil often find things for folks what ain't lost—so if any of you have found it, in such eventuality please return it to the lawful owner thereof. An' to save embarrassments and humiliations I would suggest that the finder of the lovely brooch put it in de little collection envelope."—New York Sunday Times.

Prosaic Shepherding

Shepherding is becoming a science in France. A school of shepherding in operating at Rambouillet. The school is a government institution, fostered by the ministry of agriculture. It teaches many things that the shepherds with their crooks, painted by artists and described by poets, never bothered about. There are no picturesque costumes. Students are not judged by their ability to sing or pose. They have to study the work of shepherding with a view to making a profit on sheep. About all the romance left in the profession is the sheep dog.

Couldn't Do It

The purest comedy I have ever seen occurred on an island in the Dutch East Indies with black sandy shores and white breakers and coconut palms fingering a tropical sky. A little monkey, his pointed forehead puckered into an earnest frown, was endeavoring to climb a two-foot stick of driftwood, which he held in his hands. He would prop the stick firmly before him, lift one leg carefully and clutch the pole with his toes, test it cautiously once or twice, then lift the other foot confidently off the ground and immediately go tumbling headlong, stick and all, down the hot beach toward the sea.—Corey Ford in Vanity Fair Magazine.

Good Ideas

When a man has a "good idea," he likes to tell his friends about it. And usually a "good idea" is a fool idea.—Atchison Globe.

The tragedy of many a life is, that time is not felt to be a trust.

Great Actress' Prank

Sarah Bernhardt, generally credited with never having laughed or joked while on the stage, is said to have played a prank on an actress, presumably Mrs. Patrick Campbell, in retaliation for a joke the latter had played on her. There was a scene wherein she had to grasp the hands of Mrs. Campbell, to help her over the rock. The astonished Mrs. Campbell discovered that the "Divine Sarah" carried a raw egg and left it crushed in Mrs. Campbell's hands, but went on with the scene as if nothing had happened.

Famous English Region

The Lake district in England is a picturesque region of mountain, lake, wood and valley in the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland. It has been immortalized by the lake school of poets and is visited annually by thousands of tourists.

Tout Elder as Olympic Hope

IF NOTRE DAME ever had an Olympic candidate, he is Jack Elder, the flying Fenian on track as well as on the gridiron. The Irish cinder ace and one of the most promising backs on Coach Rockne's eleven strengthened his claim to represent America in the sprints at the international gathering next July when he demonstrated by his recent flashy finishes that he is as good a sprinter in the open air as he is indoors. And, as an indoor sprinter, Elder has no superior.

When Jack Elder won the sixty-yard dash for the first time this season against Northwestern to tie the world indoor record :06.2, some of the sport fans judged him a "flash in the pan," an athlete who would stay in the foreground overnight only. But the Irish star showed heels to all his competitors, finishing in the front in every meet in which he ran.

Jack Elder.

During the indoor season Jack equaled the world mark for the sixty-yard route six times, four times in meets and twice in practice. He holds the unique distinction of covering the distance twice in the same day, when, at the Central Intercollegiate meet held at Notre Dame, he finished the semi-finals and the finals in :06.2 time. Elder is the first man to equal the time of :07.4 for the seventy-five-yard length established by H. A. Russell of Cornell in 1926, who ran the distance in equal time indoors and outdoors. This record is recognized as a national collegiate mark. The Irish star turned in his stellar performance at the Illinois relays, getting to the tape first ahead of such a field as Grady of Kansas, champion of the Missouri valley; Bracey of Rice institute and Simpson of Ohio U.

Jack ran his greatest race in the 100-length at Drake, when, bucking a stiff wind, he negotiated the distance in 10 seconds flat to finish four feet ahead of Hester of Michigan. In the preliminaries he breasted the tape in :09.8. Under similar running conditions, with a strong wind facing him, the Kentucky thoroughbred took the century event at the Kansas relays in the same time.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Jersey City has released Outfielder Fleming to Baltimore.

• • •

Beaumont has sent Pitcher Tisin to Fort Smith of the Western association.

• • •

The St. Louis Browns announced the acquisition of Frank E. Wilson from Cleveland.

• • •

Paddy Bauman, veteran infielder of many leagues, was given his release by the Dallas Steers.

• • •

Palestine has taken on Pitcher Jake Knott, recently released by Dallas. He formerly pitched for Corsicana.

• • •

Frank Crosetti, just seventeen years old, is hailed as the boy wonder third baseman of the Pacific Coast league.

• • •

Tommy Connolly, infielder released by Chattanooga, has been picked up by Atlanta and placed in the outfield.

• • •

Infielder Art Ewoldt and Outfielder Harry O'Brien, both veterans, have been released by the Des Moines Demons.

• • •

"To think," thought the fan as he studied the standings, "that I stood in line nine hours to get a ticket for the opener."

• • •

Frank Welch, former Boston outfielder, sent to Hollywood and released by the Stars, has been added to the Seal roster.

• • •

All things are relative. The small town fan worries just as much about the fate of the town team as the fans do in the big league cities.

• • •

The Dallas Steers are still at it, trying to strengthen. They recently purchased Pitcher Homer Blankenship from the Shreveport Sports.

• • •

Pitcher Joe Marty has been taken on by Albany under option from the New York Yankees. New York got him from Lincoln last season.

• • •

Outfielder Lefty Swanson, cut from the Fort Worth roster because of the player limit regulations, has been signed by the Beaumont Exporters.

• • •

To make room for First Baseman Jimmy Hudgens, purchased from Seattle, Memphis sold Pitcher Leo Dickerman to Shreveport of the Texas league.

• • •

Baby Doll Jacobson, the veteran outfielder who was taken on by Jack Dunn at Baltimore, has been released. He failed to strike anything of a stride with the Birds.

• • •

Pitcher Sis Hopkins of Texarkana appears to be due for work in faster company, according to all reports which are being borne out by his pitching this season.

• • •

With his infield badly crippled, Manager Jack Lelivelt of Milwaukee sent out a hurry call for Ollie O'Mara, veteran infielder who was with the Brewers this spring, but was released.

• • •

The Pittsburgh club announces that it has returned Pitcher George Peery to Wichita of the Western league. The player was obtained from Wichita last fall. Pittsburgh retains the right to recall him.

• • •

Ike Davis, released by Portland, still claims his trick knee is all right and that he will prove it yet before the season is over. He could not get going with the Beavers, however, either in the field or at bat.

• • •

Hank Gowdy, now a member of the Montreal team of the International league, is one of two Boston Braves of 1914 who are in active service. The other is Rabbit Maranville, reserve infielder of the St. Louis Cardinals.

• • •

Manager Bill Clymer of Buffalo made a hit with his fans when he closed a deal with Baltimore for the purchase of Outfielder Maurice (Comet) Archdeacon. Archdeacon holds the world's record for circling the bases.

• • •

Walter Johnson is to return to the scene of his major league triumphs if present plans for an exhibition game between his Newark Bears and the Washingtons at Washington are completed. The game will be staged some time in August, unless there is a hitch in plans.

Publicity of Figures in Player Sale Is Harmful

Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox, is taking the lead in suppressing overemphasis on player values. He steadfastly refuses to name the terms, whenever such terms are cash, whereby he acquires or sells a player. With Quinn it has become a matter of policy.

When Quinn announced the purchase of Ken Williams from the St. Louis Browns he was besought on all sides for the details. These he gave freely until pressed for the amount of cash involved. There he balked.

"I never tell how much a player costs me," he explained. "It doesn't do the club any good and it certainly doesn't do the player any good."

Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn club, happened to come along just as Quinn made his observation and agreed.

"Me, too," he said. "That ought to be written into the rules of the major leagues. A lot of harm has been done by releasing those outlandish figures, which, even if they were true, were all out of proportion and placed false value on players."

It is the shortest cut, in opinion of many experienced baseball men, to the end of the mad "money moon" that is generally supposed to have undermined the caliber of playing material.

John McGraw Was First Holdout Known to Game

John J. McGraw has confessed he was the first "holdout" known to baseball. There has been many a one since and McGraw has had to battle with several famous members of the Giants, but this first exploit of his gave the biggest monetary return, comparatively speaking, than any of the later and more advertised cases.

"I pitched a game for East Homer one Sunday, back in 1889," said McGraw. "I walked from Olean to East Homer and back, and they gave me $2 for winning a good game of ball. I wish some of my pitchers today would put as much into a game as I put into that one. And I walked back and forth—didn't get home till after dark.

"The next week they came after me again. But I held out. I said my price was no $2 bill, but $5 and a carriage ride from Olean to West Homes and return. And I got it. And we won again."

Picking High One

The photo shows one of the pretty British girl baseball players at the opening of the season at Stamford Bridge, England. When this young lady looks for a husband, she ought to make a good catch.

Bush Made Good

Guy Bush, the fast ball pitcher of the Cubs, figures that he made good on his first trip to the mound. "It was in New York," Guy says, "I went in to relieve Speed Martin, and George Kelly was the first batter I faced. He already had hit two home runs and a triple, and the first ball I pitched, he crashed into left field for a single. I figured that holding him to a single was quite an accomplishment, and that my job was safe." Evidently the confidence didn't do Bush any harm.

BREADON DECRIES PLAYER-MANAGER

Playing and Directing Too Big Strain for Any Man.

"I am convinced that no ball player, however great he may be as a player, or however great may be his possibilities as a manager, can manage a major league ball club and play his position at the same time."

It was Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, talking, says the New York World.

He offers as first-hand examples Rogers Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell, the two men who preceded Bill McKechnie, this year's pilot, as manager of the St. Louis entry in the National league race.

"Rogers Hornsby," says Breadon, "was recognized as the greatest batter in the National league and one of the greatest the game has produced when I made him manager of the Cardinals.

"He had a lifetime batting average close to .400.

"He is of the positive, self-willed type that should be able to throw off the mental strain that goes with directing the destinies of a big league club. Yet he wound up his only season as a manager of the team with a batting average of .317. He was 'way off his usual form.

"Bob O'Farrell succeeded him—one of the greatest catchers in the game. O'Farrell's work as a catcher suffered mainly because of the strain of directing the play of the team.

"Selecting and developing the players and molding them into a team and directing the play of that team on the field is one man's task in itself. Playing any position on a major league ball club demands a man's best, mentally and physically.

"A manager cannot make the most of his opportunities if he has to concentrate his efforts at least part of the time to his own playing. A player cannot keep his mind on the play before him, or what the pitcher is tossing up to him, if he has to worry about the make-up of his ball club in general, the strategy to be employed the following inning, or the exigencies of the moment brought on by his own pitcher's ineffectiveness or his team's inability to solve the opposing pitcher's delivery.

"You're asking one man to do two men's work at once.

"It just can't be done."

To back up his opinion further, Breadon offers the experiences of George Sisler, Ty Cobb, Dave Bancroft and others who stepped into the managerial ranks before their playing days were ended, and not only failed to set brilliant records as managers, but found their playing suffering as a result of the "doubling in brass."

Harper Is Traded

George Harper, shown above, veteran outfielder of the New York Giants, has been traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Bob O'Farrell, catcher and former manager of the Cardinals, in a trade which involved only the two players.

Human Life Is Taken

New York.—The cold and calculated murder of a seven-year-old boy by members of the court of an Indian prince, who believed that the sacrifice would save their dying rajah, is described by Katherine Mayo, in an article written for the Cosmopolitan, as typical of the vicious practices which prevail in India in spite of British efforts to eradicate them.

Miss Mayo, whose lengthy investigation of Indian life resulted in the startling disclosures recently made in her book, "Mother India," declares that while fear of British interference has curbed the once common practice of burning wives and concubines alive on the funeral pyre of their dead master, the sacrifice of human lives in secret ceremonies, prompted by the Hindu sorcerers and fed by native superstition, is still one of the gravest social problems.

The particular case she describes, says Miss Mayo, is vouched for in detail by the records of the British viceroy's agent who investigated.

Wit the rajah near death, his first wife, or rani, who was childless, was seized with jealousy and fear that the small son of the second rani would succeed to the throne with his mother, her rival, as regent, the writer explains.

Calling in the sorcerer, she plotted with him to convince the rajah that his life could be saved only by the sacrifice of a child, preferably his son by the second rani.

The sorcerer, fully aware of his impotence to cure, nevertheless convinced the rajah that his only hope for life lay in human sacrifice. The second rani, with only her love of the rajah at heart, prepared to give up her son.

"But before the child could reach the sick man's bed, a swift grip dragged him aside and one of the palace women, pushing a boy before her, stood in the young heir's place, pleading that the boy, her son, be offered in sacrifice instead.

"So they carried the rajah into his apartments, and there that night, in a shut-in place, came the first rani and the sorcerer, with certain principal officers of the state. And the sorcerer, with nuts and lamps and incantations, made strong sorcering. After this they dealt with the son of the palace woman until life passed from him.

"Then they carried the small body wrapped in a cloth and dropped it secretly into the fish pond that lies in the inner palace. And much money was forthwith paid the sorcerer.

"But the rajah, nevertheless, died in three days and was buried on a gorgeous funeral pyre, although fear of the English half ruined the ceremony by preventing the burning alive of so much as a single wife or concubine at his side.

"That night the palace woman whose child had saved the heir of the state was quietly smothered in her bed."

Yet nothing would have been heard of the double murder but for a quarrel which prompted some of the palace dignitaries who had not witnessed the ceremony to carry the facts secretly to the British viceroy's agent, says Miss Mayo. Checked by Indian stolidity, secretiveness and adherence to tradition, the agent, however, could do nothing more than determine that the first rani had been banished from the palace, in accordance with the Hindu law, and the second rani had been installed as regent for her son.

Efforts to find the sorcerer, one of the class of holy men whose vicious sway over Indian life even the most rigid British measures have been unable to check, proved unavailing. With his rich reward for his incantations securely pocketed, he disappeared quickly, probably to prey later on the superstitions of another state, far removed from the tragedy.

Mill Town Bans Old Blue Monday

Greenwood, S. C.—The traditional "blue Monday," with odors of soap and steaming laundry pots, has been abolished in two textile mill villages by James C. Self, cotton manufacturer.

He believes that lifting women from drudgery is one of the needs of the changing problems of labor, and has installed plant laundries which deliver "wet wash" free of charge to all families employed in his two large cotton mills.

"The more labor we eliminate for the women in the homes," Self says, "the better able they become to fill their places in the manufacturing scheme, not only where they are employed in the mill but where they must look after the needs of large families so employed or attending the mill schools."

Self further believes in the adoption by textile manufacturers of the most modern machinery for health promotion. An automatic humidification system in all his plants maintains regularity of humidity and temperature in place of the changeable temperature, dust and disease laden air of the old days.

Neat wooden cottages, arranged along wide, well-kept avenues, have replaced the old shacks stretched along muddy alleys. The houses renting for $1 a room a month, have garden plots both for flowers and vegetables. A golf course on the bill property is open to mill workers. The company even supplies coal for home use at cost.

One standby of a mill town, however, is missing. There is no "mill store." The workers trade with town merchants or wherever they please.

Declare Natural Gas Gives More Heat Units

New Orleans.—Natural gas gives considerably more heat than the artificial variety, the Louisiana conservation department says in its official publication.

Comparing the natural gas of the Monroe field with that supplied in New Orleans by artificial means, it found that the former had a heating value of 1,000 British thermal units a cubic foot and the latter only 600.

The heating value of natural gas, it explained, depends upon the relative percentages of the various hydrocarbons which it contains. Usually the chief constituent is methane, which has a heating value of 1,000 British thermal units a cubic foot.

Courtship seems like a dream to the average girl, and after marriage she wakes up and finds that it was.

Fine Chance for Him to Try Out "Nesting"

In the general office of one of the public utilities there is a young woman, well past sixteen, unmarried, who takes a motherly interest in all her fellow employees and never misses an opportunity to "horn in," in a pleasing way, in their personal affairs. This habit has become so fixed that some of the young women take it as a source of annoyance and consequently enjoy putting one over on her. However, recently she succeeded in turning that trick herself. One of the complaint men was passing through the office and in her high shrill voice, that carried throughout the room, she called: "Oh, Mr. —, come over here, you are just the man I want." Her face turned crimson as she heard giggles from all parts of the room. Mr.— also suffered his moment of torture as he stood in the midst of a group of giggling women. Turning to the office manager, he said: "I wish you would quiet that bunch of giggling hens," to which the manager responded, "Why not try putting them on the nest yourself?"—Indianapolis News.

Reason Probably as Good as Many Given

The season of conventions, political and otherwise, is at hand, and the desire to become a delegate and enjoy the many pleasant privileges without personal expense is entertained by many. The impulse is not a modern trait by any means. Once when the Wesleyan ministers of England were choosing delegates to attend the annual conference at London, many of the members put forth all sorts of frivolous reasons why they should be chosen. Among the seekers for the privilege was a venerable member who, at a meeting, rose, and said:

"Mr. Chairman, I wish to attend the meeting of conference in London. My years would perhaps entitle me to the privilege, but I waive that, as I have another reason as strong as many of those already given by my brethren, and that is—I want to set my watch by the clock in St. Paul's!"

Capital's "Inner Shrine"

There is a set in Washington more exclusive even than the circle which numbers foreign diplomats, wealthy winter residents, federal officials and their families. The capital's real "inner shrine" is composed of the few people who can truthfully call themselves natives of Washington. They are members of families which have made the capital their home for generations. Jewels and fashionable dress are confined to social functions of the other group; the native Washingtonians are content to keep on living in old houses that seem quaint beside the palace-like abodes of "society" so called. Old Washingtonians delight to give the cold shoulder to office holders and the new rich. Some of the oldest inhabitants continue to drive about the street in carriages which served their forbears.

Fawn's Foster Mother

Mrs. E. Cooper, who lives on a homestead bordering the Glacier National park game preserve, is visited every morning by a fawn that leaves its mother in the forest, to nurse the cow while Mrs. Cooper is milking. The mother deer patiently waits for the fawn at a safe distance and appears to be contented to allow this relay relief furnished by the cow. The cow offers no objection and Mrs. Cooper generously "spares the milk" because she likes to pet the fawn.

"I wouldn't, hat? By gosh—when I say a thing is permiscuss it's permiscuss, whether it is or not!"—Kansas City Times.

Love at Seventeen

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK

Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I HAVE just read again the story of the early life of Charles Dickens. He had much to contend against in making his advancement in life—poverty, discouragement and love—and these things he tells about in his correspondence with one of his dearest friends. It seems as if love might be an aid to progress instead of a handicap, but in the case of Dickens, as in the case of many young fellows, it is often all absorbing. It takes the whole stage of life when it possesses the young boy and there is often no room left for anything else. Speaking of his passion for Maria Beadnell for whom Dickens conceived a very early passion, he says of this love affair in his seventeenth or eighteenth year:

"It excluded every other idea from my mind for four years, at a time of life when four years are equal to four times four."

Boys are the most emotional creatures living. They do not always—in fact they very seldom—give oral expression to these emotions, but the feeling is there just the same and eats deeply into the boy's inner consciousness. Love is a great emotion and often a purifying one when it comes to an adult man, and I feel sorry for the man to whom it does not come. When it comes to a boy of seventeen or eighteen with all its force and power, it is usually an overwhelming force which takes the place of every other thought or duty.

Those who advocate the separation of the sexes during the early years of adolescence seem to feel that by this separation they reduce the probability of these early love affairs and put the young man into a position where he will be likely to give all his attention to his studies or his work. They are quite mistaken. Wherever he goes the boy is subject to this emotional infection. He may pick it up on the street, he may catch the disease through the slightest social contact in the most incidental way. It is like measles; he is not safe anywhere. Even distance does not seem to change conditions. The sweetheart at home, even when he is a thousand miles away, is often as absorbing as if she were only across the street. Her picture on his desk and the daily letter keep him in an emotional maelstrom which only too frequently submerges him.

"My boy has a little sweetheart at home," a father confided in me not long ago when bringing his seventeen year-old son to college, "and I feel that he will be morally safe when he is away from home."

Possibly, but he can be almost certain that the boy will be intellectually almost a total loss so far as his studies are concerned, provided, of course, that he takes the sweetheart seriously. Like Dickens, the boy is very likely to find that love at seventeen "excludes every other idea" from his mind. A boy at seventeen or eighteen with a dozen girls is in a pretty safe condition of mind and emotions. With one with whom he is passionately in love he is pretty sure to give his time and attention completely to that emotion, and until the disease runs its course he is worthless for anything else.

Raze Famous Market

Washington.—Center market, on Pennsylvania avenue, for 52 years a landmark of the nation's capital, may soon be torn down to make way for government buildings.

Presidents' wives have rubbed shoulders there with humbler shoppers and congressmen have spent many a Saturday morning discussing the beef situation with its butchers.

Now a bill is pending in congress for destruction of the building after January 1, 1929, to make room for a structure to house the Department of Justice.

Jacob West, seventy-seven-year-old butcher, whose neat little stand has occupied stall No. 145 since the building was opened, looks with dismay upon the possible demolition of the building.

When Jacob was sixteen years old he joined the gay throng of food mongers as an apprentice butcher in the meat business. That was before the market was entirely housed in the two-block building. Five years later he was on his own, a graduate in the butcher shop business.

"I remember Mrs. Grant when her husband was President," he says. "She used to do her own marketing. She was a nice lady, always pleasant, and she knew her business about buying meat. When there was going to be a big party at the White House she always would superintend the buying, although she brought servants to carry the stuff."

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine is a frequent visitor at the market, although only in an official capacity. His wife and two daughters are regular customers on Saturdays to superintend the marketing for the Jardine household.

Senators Smoot and Borah both are wise purchasers, market vendors say, who make thorough investigations of all foodstuffs before they purchase. Both of the cabinet's Davises also are good customers, who supervise the weekly buying for their establishments.

C. H. Walleigh, superintendent, recalls the weekly trips of Mrs. Roosevelt, with the President at her elbow making sly remarks about her buying ability. He says that President Garfield was a more serious buyer and that President Cleveland was another who took personal interest in the food destined for the White House table.

Displays Unusual Chic

The dipped-in-the-back line, so characteristic of today's smartest fashions, is used to achieve unusual chic in this interesting sports cape ensemble worn by Renee Adoree, heroine of "The Cossacks."

It is fashioned of gray kasha and combined with pale green flat crepe. The cape is trimmed with a throw of the flat crepe and the blouse is of the same material.

The two-piece frock may be worn without the cape. A hat of the same shade as the ensemble is worn with it.

This ensemble not only makes an ideal costume for town wear, but it is a chic resort costume as well.

Exchangites Hear Talk on Boy's Work

One of the most interesting and inspiring talks which has yet been given before the Redwood City Exchange Club was enjoyed by the members of that organization Tuesday evening at the club's regular weekly meeting. The speaker of the evening was AJ Ward of Burlingame, a retired newspaper man of the east, who spoke on the work that can be done for the youth of today. The speaker was enthusiastic, earnest and showed a keen insight in the needs of the boy of today, which he has gained by close study.

The chairman of the meeting was J. J. Shields, county auditor.

A. J. Stebenne brought the matter of the formation of an athletic league before the club for its endorsement. The plan was heartily approved.

Following the meeting of the club the board of control hold its regular monthly meeting, and plans were made for the annual Exchange Club carnival, which event will be held in July. This event will be also be a district meeting of Exchange Clubs at which a barbeque dinner will be served.

The carnival will be held at Sequoia Union High School and whereas in previous years this event has been free to the public, a charge of 25c per person will be made this year, the money to be used in establishing an Exchange Club Scholarship at the high school.

The club has secured permission from the Winship estate to paint the roof of their building on Chestnut street with the words, "Redwood City," that the location of our city might be made known to the travelers of the air. The committee on aviation, Kendell Towne and Harvey Connor, who have been investigating this project were instructed to have the roof so painted. In connection with this matter the secretary of the club was instructed to write W. T. Kellogg, local manager of the P. G. E. Co. in this city, thanking him for his co-operation in sign-posting Redwood City to the air. The P. G. & E. Company recently had the words, "Redwood City," painted on the top of their big gas tank here.

Manual Francis, the popular supervisor of the Fourth township, filed his nomination papers with County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese on Tuesday. Francis seeks re-election to the position he has held for several terms with credit to himself and to his constituents. The voters and taxpayers of the Fourth township will make a mistake if they change their supervisor as Francis has made a splendid official, competent, capable and trustworthy.

George W. Knapp, a contractor of this city, paid a fine of $500 in the court of Justice of the Peace Edward McAuliffe yesterday. Knapp was arrested by Sheriff J. J. McGrath on June 9 and charged with the illegal possession of liquor.

Guiseppe Faitanini arrested in Menlo Park on the same charge, paid a fine of $300 to Judge McAuliffe.

James D. Kerr Answers Final Summons at San Mateo Home Sunday

D. Kerr, a prominent retired business man of San Mateo, passed away last Sunday. Kerr was known on the peninsula, having come to the county at an early date. Many years ago he was the coachman for the late John T. Doyle of Menlo Park, later filling a similar position for Mrs. Robert Y. Hayne. Leaving her employ he launched into business at San Mateo, and retired some years ago with a snug fortune.

FAMOUS GUERNSEY BULL BOUGHT BY LA HONDA FARM

California is scheduled to receive a member of one of the most noted royal families that has ever visited the Pacific Coast tomorrow, when the crowned head of all the cattle world, Shuttlewick Dreadnaught, prize Guernsey bull, arrives in San Francisco.

Although this famous aristocrat is coming in a box car from Chicago, his arrival will not be entirely devoid of fitting ceremonials, for a delegation of California cattle financiers will be on hand to admire the distinguished guest.

Shuttlewick Dreadnaught, said to be the finest Guernsey bull which has ever come to the Pacific Coast, was purchased at the National Guernsey sale in Chicago two weeks ago by the Troutmere Guernsey Farm at La Honda.

His ancestry takes in 40 generations of the best blood of the Guernsey family. His twelve nearest ancestors sold for an aggregate of $167,000, according to his official pedigree, and it is predicted that the eight months' old bull will prove the most famous of his line.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church will give a food sale in the ... store next to Stafford & ... new grocery store on Broad... near the Union Oil station, Saturday, June 16th. Home-... cakes, pies, cookies, candies ... salads will be sold. he sale will start at 10 o'clock on Saturday morning.
